

More Than a Golf Car

The term “golf car” is a bit limiting for Club Car Precedent® golf cars. These adaptable vehicles are actually used for a variety of purposes other than playing the world’s greatest game.

Cruising the Neighborhood

The Precedent golf car is a great, energy-efficient way to get around gated, country club and seaside communities.

You can visit friends, take the kids to their tennis or swimming lessons, run errands and explore hidden trails and alleys.

The vehicles are quiet, easy to operate and park, and require little maintenance. What’s more, the Precedent is available with gas engines or zero-emissions electric motors.

They come with our exclusive Monsoon Top™ canopy that channels water to the ground, so you’ll stay high and dry regardless of the weather.

If you want to customize your golf car, we offer hundreds of accessories from enclosures to sound systems to fans to the Precedent Stretch Kit.

The Precedent Stretch Kit is a no-weld, dealer installed kit that increases comfort, fosters interaction among passengers and enhances safety by adding two forwarding-facing seats and 35 inches of floor space to the Precedent i2 Excel, converting it into a comfortable four-passenger vehicle.

Horsing Around

Equestrians saddle up their golf cars and head to the barn, pasture or training ring. They also transport them to horse shows and competitions, where they use them for local transportation.

By adding a fixed cargo box through Custom Solutions, you can turn the Precedent into a work vehicle and use it for cleaning stalls or hauling hay. Add extra traction tires and a differential guard, and you can head into rougher terrain.

Second Vehicles for Second Homes

Many people keep golf cars at their vacation homes. They’re compact, easy to store in a garage and enhance the vacation lifestyle. Depending on where your home is located, a golf car can often replace a gas guzzler.

To protect your car while you’re away, consider our optional oversized storage cover. Made of durable polyester, it is coated on the inside with an anti-static material, making it ideal for electric vehicles.

Recreational Vehicles

Once RV owners arrive at their destinations, they need dependable local transportation. The Precedent fits that bill. You can drive back and forth to the pool, golf course, boat dock or market or simply explore the many trails that run through most RV parks Club Car's exclusive AlumiCore™ frame makes the Precedent easy to transport, because it is lighter than many competitive models.

Yet the frame's box-beam construction delivers the strength of a heavier steel frame that's vulnerable to rust.

What's more, we offer a range of options that fit the RV lifestyle. These include a rear seat that carries two passengers when folded but becomes a flat bed for carrying cargo when unfolded.

We also offer lights and turn signals for safety and night driving, improved surface tires that promote a smoother ride on pavement, enclosures to shield you from the elements, and seat covers, wheel covers and other options that let you customize your ride.

Hunting, Fishing and Boating

Golf cars also make good hunting vehicles. Many hunters add optional high traction tires and a gun rack that holds the barrel straight up to prevent injuries.

Boaters and fishermen often use their golf cars for local transportation around the marina. And home owners with acreage and hobby farmers depend on them to traverse their land and perform chores.

Getting Down to Business

Golf cars also make excellent small business transportation. If you own a car dealership, motel, storage center, warehouse or other organization that covers somewhat extensive space, a golf car can save hours of your valuable time.
